

MG 224 - Human Resource Management

3 Credit Hours

This course focuses on the constraints found in organizations with the formulation and implementation of human resource management policies in businesses such as labor markets, labor laws, and labor unions. The correlation between these constraints and the competitiveness of American enterprise in the global economy is also a focus.