

SW 310 - The Social Welfare System

3 Credit Hours

This course introduces students to the complex interactions between politics, values, ideologies, and financial interests in the creation and implementation of social welfare programs. It examines poverty in the United States, the persistence of inequality, and the systemic oppression and disadvantage experienced by women, minorities, children, the disabled, and other vulnerable groups.