MPH 610 - Special Epidemiologic Applications

3 Credit Hours

Through data sets & simulations, this course investigates how epidemiological data is collected, analyzed and reported. Different ways to study and report the health of a population will be explored, and their caveats discussed. The importance of understanding and removing bias from epidemiologic studies will also be a key point. This course is heavy in math and will include population statistics and biostatistical analysis.

Prerequisites

MPH 505