

PS 101 - Introduction to Psychology

3 Credit Hours

The General Psychology course is a survey of the science of human behavior and thought processes. The course introduces the basic theoretical perspectives such as biological, cognitive, behavioral, and sociocultural influences. Among the many topics covered are learning, motivation, psychological disorders and treatments, social interactions, and human development.