

PS 360 - Health Psychology

3 Credit Hours

The course in health psychology explains the connection between psychological processes and health behaviors. Examples of health behaviors include but are not limited to eating, coping with stress, sleeping, and exercise. The goal is to gain an understanding of how to help people understand and accept healthier life activities and to help people cope with illness and recovery.