

PS 210 - Cross Cultural Psychology

3 Credit Hours

In Cross Cultural psychology, students will be exposed to the study of human behavior from a global perspective. This course includes the scientific study of universal similarities as well as the differences from one culture to another. The explanations for universal similarities and the differences are based on established psychological theories.