

PS 230 - Psychology of Women

3 Credit Hours

Psychology of women is an overview of psychological research applied to gender differences in biology, cognition, personality, communication, mental health, and gender role socialization. The emphasis is on the distinction between biological and learned, sociocultural influences on gender differences.