

CS 340 - Computer Architecture and Organization

3 Credit Hours

This course introduces the concepts of computer architecture and organization and presents basic computer system features. The course will enable students to design and implement software to efficiently utilize a computer system and accommodate its limitations. Topics include computer architecture, processors and memory, performance, hardware, binary numbering, and programming for performance.

Prerequisites

CS 210