

EN 215 - Technical Writing

3 Credit Hours

This Technical Writing course provides a complete process for planning, writing, and editing technical documents, including assessing the needs of users, selecting document formats, and making effective use of graphics. Successfully conveying complicated content to end-users, both internal and external, is vital and can greatly enhance the value of products and services. This technical writing course will teach you to effectively assess your target audience and develop documents that meet their needs.