

MA 300 - Introduction to Probability and Sta

3 Credit Hours

A study that includes counting techniques, experiments, laws of probability, Bayes' theorem, independence of events, random variables, various types of functions involving probability including probability density function, expectation, moments, mean, variance, probability inequalities, probability distributions, properties and applications of distributions, probability generating functions, and approximating probability distributions using Normal.