

EL 425 - Introduction to Remote Sensing

3 Credit Hours

This course introduces the fascinating field of remote sensing, where cutting-edge technology enables us to gather information about the Earth's surface and atmosphere without direct physical contact. From satellite imagery to aerial photography, students learn how remote sensing plays a pivotal role in fields such as environmental science, geology, agriculture, urban planning, and more.

Prerequisites

EL 410