

GP 302 - Human Growth and Development

3 Credit Hours

A study of the development of personality in childhood. Attention is given to the child's psychological equipment and learning processes. Adequate guidance and wise direction of the young child, along with satisfactory child-adult relations, is emphasized.